

Bradley P. Spaulding

---

Indiana Wesleyan University
Modern Language, Literature and Communication
4201 South Washington Street
Marion, IN 46953-4974
Telephone: 765.677.2453
brad.spaulding@indwes.edu

Home address:
1090 West 400 South
Wabash, IN 46992
Telephone: 260.569.0437
spaulding1090@verizon.net

Education

---

M.A. in English, University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, 2003

B.A. in English and Writing, Indiana Wesleyan University, 1996
Magna Cum Laude

Teaching Experience

---

Associate Lecturer, University of Wisconsin-Marathon County, 2000

Courses taught at UW-Marathon County
ENG 102 English Composition II

Assistant Professor of English, Indiana Wesleyan University, 2002-Present

Courses Taught at Indiana Wesleyan
ENG 120 English Composition
ENG 180 Humanities World Literature
ENG 237 18th Century British Novel
ENG 242 Literature and Environment
ENG 240 British Literature Survey
ENG 462 Milton
ENG 466 Chaucer

Professional Activities

---

Member, ASECS, American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, 2009-present

Member, ICEA, Indiana College English Association, 2004-present

Co-coordinator, 2007 ICEA Conference, "Mystery and Awe: Living, Writing and Teaching Words," Indiana Wesleyan University, October 2007

Coordinator and Host, Ogaga Ifowodo Poetry Reading, in conjunction with the 2007 ICEA Conference, "Mystery and Awe: Living, Writing and Teaching Words," Indiana Wesleyan University, October 2007

Presentations/Publications

---

“Ecological (Dis)embodiment: Aphra Behn’s Oroonoko, Eroticism, and Spectacular Violence,” Seventeenth Annual British Women Writer’s Conference, University of Iowa, April 2009

Review. A Private History of Awe. By Scott Russell Sanders. ISLE: Interdisciplinary Studies in Literature and Environment 15.1 (Winter 2008): 286-87.

“‘[H]er fertile womb teemed at birth’: Conceptual Metaphor, Ecofeminism, and the Earth as Nurturing Mother in Paradise Lost,” EAPSU Conference 2006, Mansfield University, October 2006

Community Service

---

Unit Parents, Reed Hall and Shatford Hall, Indiana Wesleyan University, 2004-08

Home Happenings Group, Wabash Friends Church, 2002-present

Christian Companions Sunday School, Wabash Friends Church, 2002-present